VINIFICATION

7.7 tons hand-harvested and sorted on Sept. 6, 11, and 12. All vineyards and clones were kept separate and underwent spontaneous fermentation on wild yeasts after a 4-day cold soak. 15% whole clusters were included. Aged for 10 months in 25% new oak. Bottled unfiltered and unfiltered.

SITE

A blend of two distinctive coastal vineyards. Teac-Mor is a humming biodynamic ranch 15mi. from the sea, at low elevations of <100ft Clones Pommard and 777 planted in the mid-90s on wildly complex soils (sand, loam, silt, clay, volcanic). Sealift Vineyard sits between the first and second ridge, just 5 miles from the sea at 700ft. Clone 115 planted in 1999 on a sandier soil base full of seashells.

NOTES

Late last year, we received a cease-and-desist order from a big, corporate wine company claiming they had the sole rights to the name LIOCO. Despite the fact that it refers to a wondrous place (Santa Rosa) that in our mind nobody should own, we couldn't marshal the resources to fight them. And so, here it is: the final vintage of LIOCO Pinot Noir—a stalwart in our cellar since 2008. And what a swan song it was. A warm, dry year that gave us small clusters, ripe tannins, and a wine with the characteristic crunchy red fruit like rhubarb and pomegranate. We blended a few barrels of our far coast vineyard designate Sealift with two magical Teac Mor lots (Pommard and 777). Each year the biodynamic farming at Teac Mor has improved the ecology of the place. This vineyard literally hums with life and the wine does too.
